Is the asst adv entitled to count his service towards pension? If so he cannot state it in any other way than that indicated in para 4 of letter i.e. 22/8/92. If he is not so debarred he may at times leave the station by day by day during any appeals have the case will be sent on so shortly after a case without entailing any extra cost on Govt.

It is stated that the Ramaswamy Iyer, Asst Govt Advocate is not debarred from private practice and so he is not entitled to count his service towards pension under article 230(c) of the Compendium Regulations.

If the question is to be decided on the analogy of the Govt advocate, then as there is no such office as one might first find out how our Govt advocate was dealt with in these matters before he became Legislature Secretary.

Memo

The questions raised are (1) whether it is sufficient for the Asst Govt Advocate to report departure from Bangalore ~~necessary~~ without seeking previous leave from Govt. and (2) whether he can delegate his functions to another without Government sanction.

2. With regard to the Law officers of Govt, who are allowed to take up private practice also, the practice in

in madras, appears to be that they leave
their stations without obtaining the previous sanction
of Government and that in all such cases, they either get the Govt
cases adjourned or make other arrangements for the conduct of such cases. I have not been able to ascertain definitely whether or not it is usual for the Govt Law officer to give intimation at least, of such

adjournments or arrangements to the Government.

To require the Apt Government Advocate to obtain the previous permission of Government invariably & in all cases, may on one hand, put
him to inconvenience
on some occasions,
while to leave
matters absolutely to his choice, may not,
on the other hand,
in the interests
of the Government,

be

be expedient. The best way of solving the difficulty, appears to be, to insist upon the Assistant Government Advocate, reporting his departure from Bangalore, as also the arrangements he may make for the conduct of Government business during his absence, in time sufficiently early, to enable the Government to decide whether, in each particular case, it can allow

the Asst. Government Advocate to delegate
his functions to another and whether the e-
arrangement made
by him is satisfacto-ry or not. In any case, the right of the Government to control the movements of the Asst.
Government Advocate, as well as the arrangements he may make should be clearly recognized
and laid down, and it may further be ruled that, as a rule, the Government expect him to conduct the business of the Government personally.

b

Adopting the Madras procedure we may accept his report as suppt and take no further notice of the matter.
